Title : Everything you wanted to know about Physical Review Letters but were afraid to ask

Speaker : Abhishek Agarwal, American Physical Society, USA

Date : Monday, December 11, 2017

Time : 3:00 PM

Venue : Emmy Noether Seminar Room, ICTS Campus, Bangalore

Abstract : I will try and present an editor's perspective on the ever evolving relationship between researchers, scientific journals, the broader scientific community and science journalists. Using a historical and cultural perspective to motivate the role that journals such as PRL have come to play, I will try and emphasize our present objectives and how we are trying to go about achieving them. As part of the talk I will also give an "insider's view" of the editorial process and comment on the symbiotic - sometimes whimsical but always crucial -relationship between our readers, authors and referees. I would greatly appreciate your feedback and questions during and after the talk.
